

JOCO FORCED FARM OUT POLICY BRUTALIZES INMATES!

San Diego, CA (BB Press, January 14, 2006). Complaints that the forced farm out policy at the Johnson County Kansas Adult Detention Center brutalizes inmates were verified by an incident involving Conrad Braun (aka. The Bumble Bee). In a interview Bumble Bee Braun stated, "Due to the incredibly high volume of criminal cases and probation violations, Johnson County has a Forced Farm Out Policy in over 20 Kansas counties, some more than 200 miles away. Prisoners that refuse a farm out order do so at their own peril."

Braun continued, "In my short stay I had three (3) inmates complain to me that they were beaten for refusing to farm out. None were willing to provide affidavits for fear of retaliation. Quite frankly, I had a difficult time believing this was jail policy and not isolated incidents that occurred due to inmate provocation until I personally took a test drive. Fortunately, I suffered only minor scrapes and bruises but there is no doubt that had I resisted I would have been severely beaten."

Judge for yourself. See affidavits and record here. The method of extraction described is unlawful everywhere else in our Nation. Only in Johnson County Kansas is it defended as public policy.
